How did the Fund perform during the reporting period?

In 2024, the BTS Tactical Fixed Income Fund (Class I) returned 5.59%, while Class A, Class C, and Class R returned 5.29%, 4.54%, and 5.02%, respectively. In contrast, the Bloomberg U.S. Aggregate Bond Index returned 1.25%. The Fund successfully navigated bond market volatility as the Federal Reserve's rate path remained uncertain. In April, high inflation and strong economic data pushed the 10-year U.S. Treasury yield to 4.7%, triggering a 2.33% peak-to-trough drawdown for Class I shares. However, our allocation to high-yield bonds, which exhibited lower interest rate sensitivity, allowed the Fund to recover by early May. As inflation concerns eased, the Fed signaled rate cuts beginning in 2024. From May to September, optimism about economic momentum and anticipated rate reductions fueled a rally, during which the Class I share gained 6.63%. Our positioning in high-yield bonds capitalized on strong market sentiment. In Q4, bond market volatility returned as markets priced in a potential Trump victory. Despite a 0.75% interest rate reduction from September to November by the Federal Reserve, the 10-year Treasury yield jumped from 3.6% to 4.4% amid fiscal policy uncertainty. At its December meeting, the Fed paused further cuts, revising its 2025 outlook from 2-4 cuts to a maximum of two. These developments impacted rate-sensitive bonds more than our tactical high-yield positioning. The Fund's Q4 peak-to-trough drawdowns remained within 1-2%, compared to 3-4% in the broader bond market.
